You don't save money when you buy cheap or big-size baking powder. Don't be misled. Buy Calumet. It's more economical—more wholesome—gives best results. Calumet is far superior to your milk and soda.

EL PASO STIRRUP FOUND IN DESERT

Relic of Tragedy Sent From El Centro; Was It Army Officer's?

A stirrup bearing the name of "Newton & Andrews, El Paso, Texas," which was found at the old Indian waterhole in the Colorado desert, has been sent to the chamber of commerce here by the Imperial valley chamber of commerce and will be given in charge of the Pioneers' association.

The finding of this stirrup at the famous waterhole where "Barbara Worth," the leading character in "The Winning of Barbara Worth," was supposed to have been found by overland travelers is believed to be the clue to the identity of the owner of the saddle and suggests another of the grim tragedies which occurred frequently in the desert for the old days.

Was It an Army Officer?
The stirrup was sent by F. E. Place, secretary of the Imperial valley chamber, who, in a letter to secretary A. W. Reeves, has the following interesting account of the finding of the stirrup on the desert:

"In the finding of this stirrup and other relics it simply reveals another tragedy of the desert. Found with the stirrup were horseshoes, a pipe, eye-glasses, sugar, brass buttons and bones. Judging from the articles found, we take it that he must have been an army officer who had wandered into the wilds of the great Colorado desert. He had located the old Indian waterhole, but must have perished during a sandstorm or else from the lack of food. The portion of the stirrup has been mailed to you just as it was found and brought in from the desert, which shows that it has been well preserved through our favorable climatic conditions.

"If you will read 'The Winning of Barbara Worth,' written by Harold Bell Wright, of the Imperial valley, you will have a fair conception of the desert. This book will tell you about the Indian waterhole, where 'Barbara Worth's' mother died and where the little infant was found alone upon this great desert. This stirrup was found at the same place. Under the circumstances it would, no doubt, be interesting for you to know as it will give you an idea of the terrible desert and how many people have perished.

"For your information, will advise that this stirrup has been lying on the desert for more than 15 years, to our knowledge. Would it be possible to locate this man's relatives by inquiring from Uncle Sam's officers?"

UNIVERSITY STUDENTS ELECT LYONS PRESIDENT

Austin, Tex., May 20.—In the student self government elections held in the University to fill offices for the coming year, Frank Lyons, son of T. C. Lyons, of El Paso, was elected president of the Students' association. This is the highest office within the choice of the student body.

Lyons was the nominee of the convention composed of nonfraternity students of the university. The opposing faction of fraternity men did not nominate a man against Lyons.

Frank Lyons is a graduate of the El Paso high school of the 1912 class. He is a student of the law school of the university and will receive his L. I. B. from here in 1915. He was the winner of the national peace oratorical contest held in New York last autumn, in which he represented the Texas university.

WELLTON ORANIZES FARM IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION

Wellton, Ariz., May 20.—The Wellton district now has a farm improvement association, formed under the direction of H. B. Spaulding, agronomy specialist of the state university. Weekly meetings are held and much interest is being taken in the organization. F. A. Cason is president, H. R. Carson, first vice president, H. W. Fraser, second vice president, J. D. Andrews, Jr., secretary-treasurer.

Division among ourselves is the only foe to be feared.

MEXICAN CATTLE HELP BUSINESS

Four State Agreement Revives Cattle Shipments; Spring Business Good.

The steady betterment in the cattle industry, brought about primarily by the four state agreement and more recently by the modification of restrictions regarding the entry of Mexican cattle into Texas has been the most important feature of the present month in financial circles. Business men here, and especially bankers, declare that El Paso has never realized the full importance of the cattle industry as it affects the city and that the quarantine, which completely paralyzed the business for a short time, has brought home the immense importance of the industry to this city.

El Paso's constant demand for more business structures is indicated in the letting of a contract this week for the new $12,000 Commercial National bank building. Realty men also point to this move as an indication of the rapid advance of business towards the north. Permits for a dozen residences, aggregating about $15,000, were taken out during the week, indicating a plentiful supply of money for commercial purposes.

Spring Trade Good.

Merchants of the city declare that the spring trade has been excellent. Spring activities "on time" and this has been a factor in the large sales. Traveling representatives of wholesale houses here state that, with the copper industry in Arizona almost back to normal, there has been an important and growing betterment in trade conditions in that state. In many of the larger districts production of the red metal is again at normal.

J. S. Curtiss's Review.

A review of the financial conditions in El Paso and throughout the El Paso territory is contained in an interview with John S. Curtiss, of the Curtis-Manning company, printed in the current issue of "The Texas Banker." After reviewing the banking situation, in which it is pointed out that nine of the 11 banks in the city are paying dividends and that the two remaining have only been organized a short time, Mr. Curtiss says:

"More than 150 banks in Arizona, New Mexico and west Texas have their correspondent banks in El Paso and are tributary to the El Paso Clearing House association. The price of copper and cattle are the two main barometers which indicate prosperity among these out of town banks. The present unusually strong market for copper and the unvarying high prices for cattle bring in almost unanimous reports of encouraging conditions in our trade territory.

Stock Prices Strong.

The local prices for industrial stocks remains strong. The Southwestern Portland Cement company, a $1,000,000 corporation, has paid a 5 percent dividend during the past two years, and declared a small extra dividend the last quarterly period. This stock is selling above par. The electric light, gas and telephone companies' securities are selling above par and paying profitable returns on the investment.

Real Estate Market Quiet.

The local bond market has remained quiet for a period of more than one year. Practically the only transaction was the successful sale by the county of $250,000 worth of courthouse, jail and county hospital bonds, and the disposal of a city of $200,000 worth of school bonds. The city and county finances are on a cash basis and below their authorized debt limit, so that further bond issues can be authorized by the taxpayers if necessary.

A Market for

810,000 lbs. of Coffee
90,000 lbs. of Tea
135,000 lbs. of Cocoa

Uncle Sam Drinks $684,434 worth of Coffee, $99,586 worth of Tea and $122,309 worth of cocoa every day. Multiply any of these figures by 365 (days) and you have the total annual consumption of the country.

The United States consume 993,275,000 pounds of coffee a year—over nine pounds per year for each man, woman and child. We drink three times as much coffee as any other country in the world.

The United States consume 90,148,000 pounds of tea a year—nearly one pound per year for each man, woman and child. We rank third among the great tea drinking nations of the world.

The United States consume 148,810,000 pounds of cocoa a year—about one and one-half pounds for each man, woman and child. We drink more cocoa than any other country, about 1-4 of all the cocoa consumed in the world.

As a grocer or distributor of coffee, tea, and cocoa, these additional facts should interest you.

"The Herald" readers, numbering 90,000 people, spend each year: $202,500 for Coffee

(9 pounds per reader, estimated at 25 cents a pound).

$36,000 for Tea. (1 pound per reader, estimated at 40 cents a pound).

$40,500 for Cocoa. (1 1-2 pounds per reader, estimated at 30 cents a pound).

The purchasing power of "The Herald's" readers is more readily grasped by the average purchases for 52 weeks of the year: 15,577 lbs. or $3894 worth of Coffee per week.

Hoyt Furniture Company Explain Their Position

Some people—not many—seem to think that because we control so many Splendid lines that we must be exorbitant in our prices. Right there is where they do us an injustice.

Our Principal reason for demanding the exclusive for this territory is to protect our customers, by limiting the output, with judicious distribution.

The majority of our customers would resent, and with reason, too, seeing the beautiful pieces they had selected for their homes, in a hundred other homes, perhaps on the same street. HOW WOULD YOU LIKE IT?

There are few furniture dealers who allow sentiment to enter into their transactions. Look about and judge for yourselves.

For the benefit of the few, will again publish and request that you read
